FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Idaho Transportation Board will meet Wednesday (June 8) to consider truck permitting rule concepts

BOISE - The Idaho Transportation Board will meet Wednesday (June 8) to consider potential changes to rules that govern the commercial motor vehicle permitting process.

The meeting will start at 10:30 a.m. in the auditorium at the transportation department's headquarters in Boise.

The Idaho Transportation Department manages the process of granting permits to shipments that exceed a certain length, width, weight and height. The permits are for shipments that travel on the state highway system.

Administrative rules ensure a state agency's procedures are aligned with the requirements of policies and programs established by the Idaho Legislature, through Idaho code.

Negotiated rulemaking is an informal part of the rulemaking process that brings together interested and affected persons for discussion and input prior to development of a proposed rule.

For additional information on this project, go to itd.idaho.gov and click on the "rulemaking" tab on the left side of the page.

If the Idaho Transportation Board determines that an actual administrative rule change is desired and feasible, it will move forward with drafting proposed rule changes as part of the negotiated rulemaking process. The public will have the opportunity to comment on proposed changes before they become final.
